Richmond, Va., Nov. 23.—After taking a pathetic leave of his immediate family, Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., made ready tonight for eternity. Tomorrow before the sun is an hour high he will have paid the penalty demanded by the law for the murder of his young wife last July. There is absolutely nothing to indicate that Governor Mann will act to stay the hand of justice and the chief executive is the only one who can lengthen the span of life of the condemned man.

A Pathetic Parting. The day was spent by the young man in prayer, save for the time spent in the farewells of his family. Beattle is said to have declared his entire conversion and that he has no doubt that his peace has been made with God. He told his spiritual advisers that he faced the hereafter with supreme confidence.

A Pathetic Parting. A Pathetic Parting.

For a few brief moments today Beattle broke down and it was feared his remarkable nerve and stoicism were about to desert him. This was when he took leave of his father and brother Douglas. When the time for parting came, the son laid his head on his father's breast and sobbed convulsively. One arm was flung across his father's shoulders and the other hand gripped that of his brother.

Father Displays Fortitude. But he recovered quickly. The fort-itude of the elder Beattie had more to do with this recovery than the sooth-ing offices of Rev. Benjamin Dennis, who has labored with the doomed pris-oner. With Spartan self-control, the father kept his emotions in check, although the tears raced down his cheeks and his lips twitched. No words were spoken, but the young wife murderer must have felt the stern fepression of his father, for he strangled his sobs and straightened up.

The Final "Good-Bye" Said. "Good-bye." he said, and turned away. Neither father nor brother trusted himself to reply, but made their way from the skinitentiary. When they enter it again it will be to claim the body of the young man.

GIRLS SHOT LOW BY ADVICE OF CLERK This Is What Saved Stokes' Life, Declares the Prosecutor.

New York, Nov. 23.—Ethel Conrad and Lillian Graham would probably have killed W. E. D. Stokes, if they had not aimed low to allow for their revolver's "jumping" when they shot the sportsman in the legs last June, it was alleged today by State Attorney Buckner when two show girls were placed on trial on indictments charging them with having attempted to take Stokes life.

In opening for the prosecution Mr.

take Stokes' life.

In opening for the prosecution Mr. Buckner told the jury that the clerk from whom the girls bought their revolvers advised them to point the muzzles two feet below the object that they wanted to shoot, "as being amateurs, their revolvers were sure to jump up."
"The fact that Stokes is alive today is due wholly to the advice of this clerk," deciared the attorney. Counsel for the defense in the questions put to talesmen while the jury was being picked indicated that the girls' plea would be self defense. The motive for the shooting, as alleged by the prosecution, was revenge for refusal by Stokes to sign a check for $25,000 which the Conrad girl is salleged to have demanded after she had induced him to come to her apart-ment to get eighteen letters Stokes wrote to the Graham giri, These let-ters, Buckner said, the Graham giri had threatened to send to Mrs. Stokes unless she got $500.

Court adjourned until temerrow on the conclusion of the prosecutor's ad-dress. The jury was obtained with comparatively little difficulty.

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 23.—Not guilty was the verdict returned late today by a jury in the common pleas court before which the appealed case of Captain Paul Boynton of Steeple-chase Island, who was convicted and fined $5 in a lower court for violating the Sunday law. The jury was out four hours and twice came in to say that they could not reach a verdict, but each time was sent back by the court. The last time they came in the judge quoted from a superior court judge's quoted from a superior court judge's statement that the minority of a jury ought to have some consideration for the majority, and in ten minutes the verdict was rendered. The finding is expected to have a marked effect on Sunday sports in this city.

Condensed Telegrams Queer Tale of Mrs. Patterson

HER HUSBAND WAS ALWAYS HUNGRY FOR MONEY.

CARED NOT HOW SHE GOT IT

On Divers Occasions Suggested That She Debase Herself-Testimony of Woman on Trial for Murder.

Denver Col., Nov. 23 Gerunde Gibson Patterson, charged with the nurder of her husband, Charles A. Patterson, took the stand today in her patterson, and began the story of own defense and began the story of her married life. The objection of the state to the introduction of her story was overruled.

Incessant Demands for Money.

Mrs Patterson slipped quietly into the witness seat and in a low, distinct tone began her story. She told of her marriage to Patterson at Carmel-by-the-Sea, Cal. in September, 1908, after a three months' acquaintance, and of her return to Chicago soon afterwards. In November, she said, Patterson began to make incessant demands for money, which she was unable to give him.

A Vile Proposition.

A Vile Proposition. "One day he said to me," she told the jury, "I know how to fix it so neither of us will have to work. You go down to George's place (a Chicago resort). An attractive girl like you can get lots of money. I don't care what you do, so long as I am in on it."

Her First Beating. "Some time afterwards," Mrs. Patterson went on, "Mr. Patterson came to me and asked me to make a proposition to Emil W. Strouss, of whose friendship for me he knew. He said:
'You tell Strouss to rent an apartment and live with you as his wife and have me live under the same roof and enjoy the same privileges. I ordered him from the flat and he gave me my first beating, from which I was in bed for two days."

Strougs Asked Her to Go to Europe Then Mrs. Patterson told the jury how she met Strouss casually in a street and told him of her domestic unhappiness. "He said he pitled me." Mrs. Patterson continued, "and that he was going to Europe and wished he could take me with him. I told Mr. Patterson and he said: "Teil Strouss he can take you to Europe with him if he gives me $1,500." And when I refused he flew at me and called me a vile name."

ile name." Strouss Willing to Pay $1,500. In this encounter with her husband, Mrs. Patterson said, he tried to threw her into a grate fire and beat her. After this experience, Mrs. Patterson said, she again saw Strouss and told him what had happened and he agreed to give Patterson the $1,500 and take her to Europe with him, provided Patterson would give him a written statement freeing him of blame.

Refused to Give Streuss Statement. "I telephoned my husband," Mrs. Patterson continued, "and agreed to meet h imat the bank, where I gave him the $1,590, which he deposited to his credit." When she asked Patterson for the statement that Strouss wanted, she said, he called Strouss a name and Wanted Her te Come Back.

Airs. Patterson next described how Patterson took her to the train when she was to leave for her trip abroad with Ströuss. She said she met Strouss on board the steamer in New York. On reaching Paris, she said, she found a letter from her husband. "I have come to the conclusion that you don't intend to come back to me," she said the letter read, "and if you don't return at once I'll follow you and kill you."

Came Back With $5,000. Wanted Her to Come Back.

Came Back With $5,000 "I showed the letter to Strousa," said Mrs. Patterson, "and he gave me $5,000 and sent me back on the next steamer. I have never seen him since." On her return to Chicago, she said, Patterson met her at the train. He asked her how much money she had brought back. When she told him she had brought none, and asked him what he had done with the $1,500 he flew into a rage, she said, and beat her.

Wanted Her to Sell Aute.

Mrs. Patterson went on to tell of duarrels and beatings which arese from her refusal to sell her electric autemobils and give the money to Patterson. To two of these, she said, there was a witness, a Mrs. Campbell, who lived near the Patterson home. Mrs. Campbell, it is said, is here to testify. Mrs. Patterson's narrative was interrupted by adjournment of court fer the day. Before Mrs. Patterson took the stand her counsel said that the defense would show that Mrs. Patterson fired the shots which killed her husband after he had knocked her down and kicked her, and that she shot while she was on her knees, swuggling to regain her feet. regain her feet.
